9.05am Panel Discussion

Is the wealth management offering in Indonesia evolving rapidly enough?

- Where will the continued growth come from and what are your priorities?
- How is regional wealth management developing?
- How are private banks changing their proposition?
- What does the private banker of tomorrow look like?
- Whats the role today of regional financial centres like Singapore?
- How do the different players – wealth management, insurance and banks compete or complement each other?
- How is the insurance market developing – especially for HNW?
- How important is digital today?
- Offshore / onshore. Where is the long-term opportunity?
- Is there a hybrid model where international banks can work with onshore banks?
- What changes are we seeing in client expectations and behaviour?

How technology is changing the way we distribute structured products

Eric Michl
Head of Equity Derivatives Trading, Asia
Commerzbank

Digital trends: what we sell, to whom, how and in which format:

- what: payoffs range from simple vanilla options to complex exotic products
- to whom: clients range from large Private Banks (B2B) to individual investors (B2C) across Europe, Asia and the US
- how: wide variety of digital distribution channels, including exchanges, third-party trading platforms, email, bilateral connections
- format: listed, OTC, securitized

Does technology make structured-product trading faster, cheaper and more efficient?

Managed Accounts in Asia

Managed accounts are one of the largest and fastest growing segments of the wealth management market globally, eclipsing $5 trillion of assets in the U.S. market alone. Increasingly they are available in Asia as an important tool for wealth managers to access third party asset managers to implement tailored and transparent solutions for their discretionary portfolio management clients.

- What is a managed account?
- How does it work?
- Making money for clients with managed accounts
- Why is a managed account relevant in Asia today?
