Private Banking Heads discuss the visions of the Future of Wealth Management in Asia

- What impact has the pandemic had on the direction and speed of evolution for the wealth industry in Asia?
- Will the private banks or the IAMs/EAMS be the winners in the years ahead in Asia?
- Will there be an acceleration of consolidation in the industry?
- What role will the RM play in the post-pandemic world and how will his/her relevance and productivity be enhanced?
- Are the private banks enslaved and hamstrung by compliance, or is the regulatory proliferation worldwide an opportunity to drive for professionalism in the industry, rather than an impediment?
- Are Asia's clients evolving in terms of their outlook, their professionalism, and their outlook, and if so how?
- Are the banks managing to boost their advisory and DPM income, thereby reducing the weighting of the ad hoc, product-selling type revenues?
- Are the banks truly embracing open architecture, or are they simply virtue signalling?
- What markets, products, and solutions are in favour, or are likely to be in the foreseeable future?
- In which areas of digital/technology should wealth management providers invest further, and why?
- What is your vision for wealth management in Asia in a (hopefully) Post Covid-19 world?
